Religion and Politics in South Asia

Lecturer : Steven Wilkinson (Professor and Chair of Political Science, Yale University)

Date : May 18, 2017 (Thu.), 11:30-12:40

Place : H-253

This lecture examines the relationship between religion and politics in India, Pakistan and Sri Lanka from the colonial period to the present. Why did religion become the dominant cleavage in colonial politics? Why, at least so far, has India done a better job than Pakistan in managing the religious conflicts that many thought would destroy the new state? Why is it that Buddhism, the religion of nonviolence, has been associated with severe conflict in Sri Lanka? Will the new Hindu Nationalist wave in Indian politics today, with its cow protection vigilantes and ‘anti-Rome patrols’ succeed in permanently altering the post-independence secular state?
